Body Safety Basics for Little Ones

Respectful greetings and early body-safety talk · Ages 2–4

Body-safety education starts with small, everyday moments: naming body parts, respecting 'no', and teaching that it's okay to tell a trusted adult anything.

Everyday practice

- ○ Use correct names for body parts.
- ○ Let your child choose how to greet: namaste, wave, high-five or hug.
- ○ Stop tickling when they say stop.
- ○ Ask before helping with bathing or dressing: “Can I help you wash?”

Simple rules to teach

- ○ Your body belongs to you.
- ○ Private parts are private.
- ○ No secrets that make you feel worried.
- ○ You can always tell me, and you won't be in trouble.

With relatives

- ○ Prepare your child before gatherings.
- ○ Offer a greeting choice out loud, so relatives hear it too.
- ○ Thank relatives for understanding.
